

Restaurant Worker Caught Stealing Liposuction Fat

August 18, 2004: 8:50 PM CST

By M. Randolph Nelson, CNN Story Writer

EL PASO (CNN) – A local restaurant cook was apprehended by police as he was kneeling inside a hazardous waste dumpster outside of a liposuction clinic. The officers discovered him gathering the containers of human cellulite that had been removed from patients. Police were responding to a call from the clinic staff complaining about a man in the waste container behind their building. Upon arrival the officers discovered Alex Chingones, 27, in the dumpster removing the plastic encased fat.

Interrogation revealed that Mr. Chingones was removing the human cellulite to use as a cooking ingredient at the restaurant that employed him. Subsequently, the El Paso Health Department has temporarily shut down El Nachos Locos until a full investigation has been completed.

“I’m gonna miss that place”, lamented Anthony Clifton, a former diner at El Nachos Locos. “They had the best chicharrones!”